

North High Holds Daily Flag Rite

In keeping with its program for better citizenship in the student body, North High School has recently begun flag raising and lowering ceremonies. Instituted by the student council, these ceremonies take place each morning and evening, before and after school. With the playing of the national anthem, all students, faculty and administration come to attention showing their respect to the flag. The Valiants, a school service club, has the honor of raising and lowering the flag.

No Action Taken on Pay Hikes

An appeal for salary increases by two organizations representing most city employees, will be considered by the city council when it begins its budget hearings Tuesday. Requests for higher pay in line with cost of living increases, were made by the Torrance police and fire wage and benefit committee, and the miscellaneous employees organization whose spokesman claims to represent 95 per cent of the city workers who are not in the police or fire service.

The miscellaneous employees, represented by Jonathan Dummer, request 26 instead of 24 pay periods at the same amount, or a blanket $50 per month hike. Dummer argued that present pay periods, which vary depending on the number of days in the month, are a hardship on employees. He said that living costs have increased 10 per cent since Jan. 1, 1957, and that wages have risen only 5 per cent.

In addition, the employees want three weeks vacation after five years and four weeks after 10 years, cash pay for unused sick leave and differential bonus pay for night work after 4 p.m. Police and firemen, represented by David A. Cook and Albert M. Salcido, asked for a 6 per cent pay boost, longevity pay, four weeks vacation after 15 years, shooting and clothing pay, motor officer riding pay, and a widow's benefit clause in the pension contract. "We will give the requests a great deal of attention," Mayor Albert Isen assured the spokesmen.

Mate Tells Vain Hunt for Doctor

Three Hour Lapse In all, more than three hours had elapsed since Mata first sought medical aid. "I feel that the three-hour delay was what killed her. If she had a fighting chance, she may not have died," Mata said. "I want to prevent that this type of thing will ever happen again not only in Torrance, but in every city in the United States," he added.

He believes that even though it was a holiday, some provision should be made to have doctors on call to cope with situations such as his.

No Aid Refused A spokesman for Torrance Memorial Hospital denied that the hospital ever refuses to admit emergency patients, but said that availability of doctors had been discussed at previous staff meetings, and will be taken up again this week.

He said that Mata had taken his wife from the hospital a week before, against medical advice, but that she certainly would have been readmitted as an emergency case without a doctor admitting her.

Mata said that he has insurance to take care of the hospital expenses and insists that he would have to have a doctor to admit her to the hospital. "I live in Torrance and I work for the city and pay taxes here. I think something should be done to see that a doctor is available even on holidays. Had one been available, he might have saved my wife's life," he declared.

Law Alumnus Wants Rewrite of Job Specs

Specifications for the deputy city attorney's post were ordered rewritten on insistence of Councilman Willys Blount who objected that they exclude some attorneys.

He objected to the requirement that the candidates must have graduated from law school of a college or university of recognized standing. "You would exclude Southwestern Law School," Blount, an alumnus of the school, protested.

Councilman Victor Benstead then wanted to know if City Attorney Stanley Remelmeier had passed the bar. "He's a Harvard alumnus," Blount answered.

He was successful in having the change made.

Injuries when his bicycle collided with an auto driven by Ellis Milo Hurn, 40, of 2918 Opal, police said.

Police Talk Man Into Surrender

Andres Alarcon, 40, was held to the home by neighbors who reported the suspect was disturbing the peace. Police said Alarcon threatened to shoot, but they talked him into surrendering.

CALFRAN
MANUFACTURERS AND IMPORTERS

WHERE EAST meets WEST

Shown above is but a corner of one of the most interesting furniture stores in all of Southern California. CALFRAN has long been known for its manufacture of the finest in Rattan furniture, including many original and exclusive designs.

Now—"East meets West." CALFRAN has begun the production of several unique and smartly styled MODERN lines . . . such as the "Puna," or Hawaiian Day Bed, and the "Beechcomber" series of lanai and patio furniture.

Best of all—because CALFRAN manufactures both its Rattan and Modern lines—its prices are intentionally AT LEAST 20% TO 30% UNDER comparable furniture elsewhere. Come in and browse—it will be a worthwhile money-saving adventure!
